Question 1 Part	Marks awarded	Marks available	Comments
(a)	9	10	The commentary starts with a clear direction in terms of answering the question. The use of terminology is accurate. The subsidy diagram is well drawn and clearly explained in the text. The theory on the application of a subsidy to support producers is very well explained and integrates the diagram effectively. The next part of the answer is an effective explanation of how a maximum price might promote equity, as it shows how a maximum price can support low-income households. The diagram is effectively integrated into the answer. This is a clear answer to the question, uses relevant terminology well, has clear explanations using economic theory and is supported by good diagrams. Nine marks are awarded.
(b)	13	15	The answer starts with a clear context in terms of the question and accurate use of terminology relating to the application of indirect tax. The answer provides a good explanation of the imposition of indirect tax on cigarettes in Pakistan which is the real-world evidence (RWE). This is supported by well-drawn, accurate diagrams showing a tax on cigarettes. The influence of price elasticity of demand is integrated into the answer as the evaluation. The impact of the tax on consumers, government and firms is well explained and evaluated. The answer concludes with a good evaluation of the impact of the indirect tax on different stakeholders. This is a clear answer to the question, demonstrating good use of theory, effective diagrams, good use of the RWE and effective evaluation. 13 marks are awarded.
