Question 3 Part	Marks awarded	Marks available	Comments
(a)	6	10	This response does not explain the relevant theory well enough, and there seems to be some confusion in the response. However, there is an effort to address the limitations of the theory as posed by the question. So, there is some understanding of the specific demands of the question, though the questions are perhaps not fully addressed. Some economic terms are appropriately used.
(b)	10	15	The response shows a good idea of what a trade bloc is. There seems to be an awareness of the specific demands of the question, and an attempt has been made to address them. The theory is relevant, and it is explained. There is limited consideration of examples, however, and the one offered is not integrated. The attempted synthesis is low level and not well developed, though there is some balance. Integration with the example considered at the end would have significantly improved this response. Perhaps, other forms of integration should have been considered as well. A relevant diagram is included, and an explanation is offered. The terminology used is mostly appropriate.
